A fast growing communications consultancy tackling some of the UK's biggest challenges and creating positive social change

COPPER

What we do

Infrastructure is the backbone of the UK economy. It is central to the post-Covid economic recovery, facilitates a devolved economy and generates inward investment. Infrastructure projects unlock societal benefits and improves the quality of life for millions of people.

Copper is an infrastructure specialist and we connect the built environment with the public. For too long, infrastructure has been perceived by the public as happening to them, not for them.

Our clients and partners deliver world leading engineering and investment to help improve societal outcomes. Our job is to convey this message in the most compelling, creative, empathetic and engaging way.

We help organisations, companies and projects to communicate effectively and achieve their goals.

Copper can help you reach your goals

Copper is a people focused employer, where everyone has the opportunity to flourish and develop their careers.

We operate in a demanding but rewarding environment and employ some of the brightest people in communications and infrastructure.

At Copper, our team thrive in challenging environments; they have an eye for emerging trends and issues; they predict; they innovate and they give wise counsel to our clients.

With a heritage of 25 years in our sector, we are an industry leader.

Joining Copper means being an active team player in a supportive environment with colleagues and clients alike, while striving to achieve outstanding results for society.

Our work isn't easy but it does give us job satisfaction and pride in what we achieve.

You can play a central role in shaping the future of Copper whilst advancing your career.

Our track record is second to none

We work with the biggest names in infrastructure. From government departments including MHCLG, government funded delivery organisations like Highways England and HS2 to private sector companies, our clients and partners deliver change across the UK.

We work on projects that are a key part of the UK's Covid-19 recovery strategy, help meet the government's ambitions to hit zero emissions by 2050 and are shaping the country following our exit from the EU.

We're underpinned by strong financial performance

Copper has consistently grown over the years. We've more than doubled in size since 2017 and our financial strength allows us to reinvest in our people and the business.

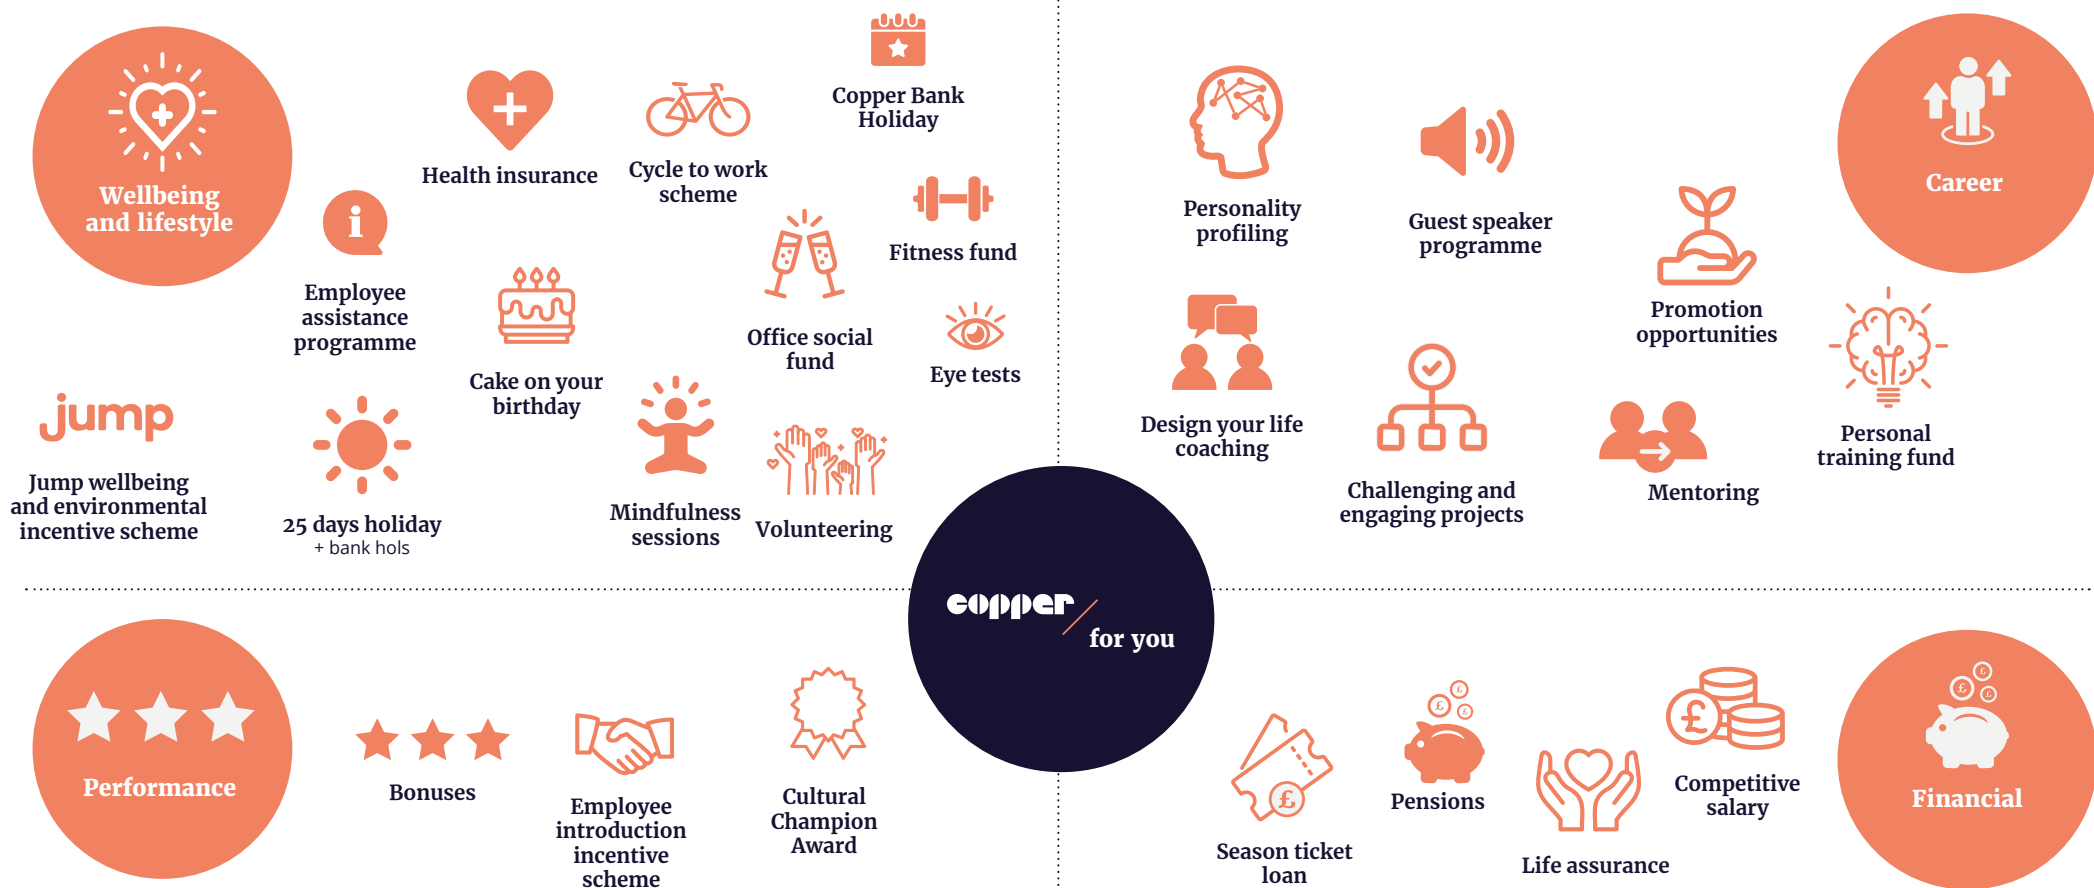

And that growth continues.

Copper is shaped for you

We offer an industry leading benefits package – Copper For You – benchmarked above the PRCA’s annual survey.

Our training programme offers our team access to bespoke courses and coaching sessions with insightful experts including former CEOs of some of the world’s biggest PR companies, life coaches and many more.

We also run an internal speaker programme with industry leaders to inspire our team with their insights career experiences and advice.

Join a team making a tangible difference to society

At Copper we publish our own research on public attitudes to infrastructure to take the pulse of the country on specific issues.

We do this to enrich our understanding of what the public thinks and feels about infrastructure planning, construction and economic development in the UK today.

"At Copper everyone cares about delivering creative, inspirational and engaging communications campaigns for our clients and our communities. We get the chance to work on some of the most exciting and high profile projects in the UK, projects that make a real difference to the communities that we live in."

Diana Deans | Senior Account Manager

"Copper has provided me with an opportunity to carve out my own niche within an already specialised industry, offering me the chance to create and develop ideas and see them through from inception to delivery.

Joining Copper means joining a collaborative community of experts while retaining your own creative independence."

Joseph Moore | Account Manager

"Focusing on the built environment means you're able to shape real things that really matter to people; every day, you're helping improve the positive impact of the infrastructure we need to keep the UK growing sustainably. Copper cares about ensuring you reach your own goals, while we work on client goals we're genuinely passionate about."

"As a recent graduate, working at Copper has provided me with the ideal environment to grow as a young professional. Exposure to the varied and constantly evolving nature of the work has allowed me to develop a wide variety of skills, from traditional business acumen, to a niche understanding of the construction and infrastructure sector. The flat hierarchical structure, combined with an intense staff-centric focus, allowed me to feel valued as a team member and ensured that I am able to contribute at all levels of the business."

Harry Britten | Account Executive

"Since joining Copper, I have worked on a suite of projects across our economic development and infrastructure practices. I have combined my academic interest in sustainability and development and have practically applied robust research, analysis, marketing and engagement skills to become more aware of the ways to shape the best outcomes for communities and the vital work that Copper does to enable this."

Aliba Haque | Account Executive
